

April 30, 95

Dear Don't forget:

I am writing in response to a letter written in your April issue by Jeff McIntyre. He asks where all the son/daughters of Bataan and Corregidor Survivors are?

I am the daughter of Boyd Ringo. He was captured on Corregidor and spent over 3½ years as a POW.

On April 6th of this year, my parents took my brother and his wife and my husband and myself to the Philippines. It was the most exciting and emotional ten days of my life. We visited the Malinta Tunnel on Corregidor where Dad was captured, we went to Bataan and several former prison camps. We drove most of the "Death March" and heard stories from the other four POWs in our group.

I can never thank my Dad enough for wanting his children to learn a little about that part of his life. Also, thank you Jeff for being a proud son. I too, feel that special bond that draws all veterans and their families together.

A Proud daughter,
Mrs. Luann Nelson
